MOST USEFUL
GIFT CATALOGUE

Australian Pacific College's really useful Christmas gift 2006

Photo: Many families in Afghanistan lost all their livestock during the war. Now they're able to begin again, raising goats for milk and cheese. Families love to decorate their animals, and the pink tassels on the goat's ears help identify it.

If you would like to give a gift similar to the one you have received, please browse the 2006 Gift Catalogue at www.usefulgifts.org

This gift covers the cost of a goat for a poor rural family. Goats are easy to care for, reproduce quickly and are highly valued for their milk and meat.

This gift has been selected from TEAR Australia's Arguably the World's Most Useful Gift Catalogue. It is part of a long-term development project that enables very poor people to create real and lasting change in their lives.
