[ARGUABLY]
THE WORLD'S MOST USEFUL
GIFT CATALOGUE

Australian Pacific College's really useful Christmas gift 2006.

Photo: For many years, women in Afghanistan missed out on an education. Now they are able to attend their own classes and learn not only to read and write, but also about health and nutrition so they can keep their families healthy.

If you would like to give a gift similar to the one you have received, please browse the 2006 Gift Catalogue at www.usefulgifts.org

This gift covers the cost of adult education classes. The skills to read, write and count enable adults to make the most of their resources and contribute to the political, social and economic life of their community.

This gift has been selected from TEAR Australia's Arguably the World's Most Useful Gift Catalogue. It is part of a long-term development project that enables very poor people to create real and lasting change in their lives.
