[ARGUABLY]
THE WORLD'S MOST USEFUL
GIFT CATALOGUE

Australian Pacific College's really useful Christmas gift 2006.

Photo: Trintawatt works in an agricultural school teaching environmentally sustainable farming in northern Thailand. The school's tree-planting program enables farmers to stabilise their steep rice paddies.

If you would like to give a gift similar to the one you have received, please browse the 2006 Gift Catalogue at www.usefulgifts.org

This gift covers the cost of growing tree seedlings to bind the soil and reverse deforestation in a damaged land. Tree planting and land-care programs help stabilise the soil, protect water supplies, and provide food and firewood for families and fodder for the animals.

This gift has been selected from TEAR Australia's Arguably the World's Most Useful Gift Catalogue. It is part of a long-term development project that enables very poor people to create real and lasting change in their lives.
